

Where to Eat Brunch in Chicago Right Now, December 2020

Try these 16 new options for Bloody Marys and Benedicts

by Jeffy Mai Dec 10, 2020

Brunch, not quite breakfast or lunch, is one of the best parts of the weekend — even during a pandemic. The Eater Chicago Brunch Heatmap is here to help by highlighting the newest options for a delicious meal.

The latest additions include CBD-infused brunch specialist Wake ‘n Bacon, Latin-inspired seafood restaurant Azul Mariscos, and modern Jewish deli Jeff & Judes. They join a growing number of places that are focusing on their midday menus. So start the day off right with eggs (and much more) at these 16 choices.

9. Azul Mariscos

1177 N Elston Ave
Chicago, IL 60642

(773) 770-3766
Visit Website

Take a culinary journey to Latin America and enjoy fresh seafood at this new establishment along the Chicago River. Azul Mariscos delivers waterfront views and oceanic delights, such as lobster avocado “toastones,” aguachiles, and shrimp pozole. The brunch menu also features morning plates like huevos rancheros and carne asada and eggs. Order for carryout or delivery via third party services, or dine in the restaurant’s heated tent.

